Hungarian Reds Purge Stalinists

Party Expels Rakosi, Geroe

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—In a house-cleaning of Stalinists, Hungary's Communist party has expelled from membership Matyas Rakosi and Ernoe Geroe, two once-powerful leaders. A leading Stalinist also was fired from the Politburo and 23 others were kicked out of the party.

Author of the famous "salami tactic" explanation of gaining power, Rakosi fled to the Soviet Union in the angry days of 1956, the year of the anti-Soviet uprising that shook Europe. The 70-year-old party veteran, who brought the Communists to power in Hungary after World War II, is believed to be still in the Soviet Union. He is said to be in poor health.

Geroe, his disciple and successor as party general secretary, fled to the Soviet Union during the uprising and was allowed to return only last year. At the time, a spokesman said he would be banned from political activity. He is 63.

Fired from the Politburo was Karoly Kiss, long regarded as Hungary's leading Stalinist still holding a position of prominence. A former deputy premier, foreign minister and vice president, Kiss lost his job as secretary of the party Central Committee last year.

(In Vienna, political circles saw the party purge as a step taken with an eye on the forthcoming U.N. General Assembly. They noted that the United States proposes that the Hungarian question be placed on the agenda again because no satisfactory steps to improve the people's lot have been taken by the Communist regime in the six years since the uprising.)

It had been generally assumed that Rakosi and Geroe long since had been ousted from party membership, because there has been no indication either retained any membership rights in recent years.

The decisions were announced Sunday in a party communiqué accusing most of those ousted with involvement in the Rakosi purge trials before the 1956 uprising. The action was taken at a four-day meeting of the party Central Committee ending Friday, which heard a report of an investigation into "illegal trials during the time of the personality cult (Stalinism)," Radio Budapest said.

For Rakosi, the expulsion writes a bitter party finish to a long revolutionary career that saw him often imprisoned for Communist activities in Hungary before World War II.

In the days of the Hitler-Stalin pact, the Soviet Union induced the Nazis to get Rakosi out of a Hungarian prison and he went to the Soviet Union. Returning to his native land with the conquering Soviet army in 1945, he began his

Operation Results Mixed; U. S. 'Copter Downed, Five Hit

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Four thousand weary Vietnamese troops turned back from the southern swamplands Sunday after four days of chasing Communist guerrillas. The first phase of "Operation Big Pacification" had mixed results.

Officials said important Communist military installations were destroyed in the southern tip of South Viet Nam, an area controlled by the Viet Cong Communists where government troops never before had penetrated in force.

But the guerrillas themselves remained hidden, perhaps alerted to the start of a big operation by aerial reconnaissance several days ago.

U.S. Helicopter Shot Down

About 30 U.S. Marine and Vietnamese army helicopters played a major role in the swamp operation, carrying out reconnaissance and ferrying troops.

One U.S. helicopter was shot down, and five others were hit. No injuries were reported and the downed helicopter was repaired and flown out.

U.S. military advisers were disappointed with the outcome of the operation's first phase, three months in the planning. But they hoped for better results from the second phase, which begins late next week.

Red Installations Destroyed

Vietnamese troops who spent up to 48 hours on the move in muddy, mangrove swamps found and destroyed Viet Cong strategic hamlets such as those being built by the government in the rest of the country. But few people were found.

A government communiqué claimed 124 Viet Cong dead and 117 prisoners, with the tally incomplete.

The government troops were after a strong force of 2,000 Viet Cong who have held almost unchallenged control of most of Cao Mau Province. Officials said the operation will continue until the power of the guerrillas is broken in the isolated region.

Progressive Saudi Arabian Prince 'Exiled'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Saudi Arabia's progressive Prince Talal, proclaiming himself a political exile, declared Sunday he has wide support at home for his demand for a democratic government there.

Talal, King Saud's younger brother, said all airlines have been ordered not to take him back to Saudi Arabia, but he said, nevertheless, he intends to return to that land of desert and oil riches.

The prince's passport was withdrawn by the Saudi Embassy last week after he issued a call in Beirut for "a democratic constitutional government" to replace King Saud's absolute rule. Talal flew to Cairo on Sunday to obtain a United Arab Republic passport.

He told reporters on his arrival: "I am ready to settle differences with my brother, King Saud, if this proves to be in the interest of the Saudi people and not of the king and his entourage alone."

While King Saud has had trouble before with some of his progressive brothers, this is the most serious royal rift to come out into the open in the kingdom, which is moving slowly toward modernity, backed by American-produced oil profits.

In an interview before leaving for Cairo, Prince Talal, 31, said he has no plans to see President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the U.A.R., and after about a week plans to return to Beirut with his new U.A.R. passport.

"Eventually I am going to return to Saudi Arabia," Talal said. Asked what would happen when, and if, he did, Talal replied: "Nobody knows." He hinted he might face arrest.

Argentina Army Truce Runs Out

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Argentina moved Sunday through the last hours of a truce in its latest military-Cabinet crisis. A showdown may come Monday.

Rival factions in the army conferred separately, seeking a peaceful solution for a power struggle that threatens to wreck Argentina's part in the Alliance for Progress program and to set up a military dictatorship.

Monday marks the end of the truce called Thursday by rebellious army leaders headed by Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero. They called for the government of President Jose Maria Guido to follow the path of the "liberation revolution" that toppled dictator Juan D. Peron in 1955.

Critics saw this as a bid for the return of the military to power, as in the days after Peron was booted from office. Washington apparently took the same view and warned it would not recognize a military dictatorship and would suspend economic aid. Rival army leaders rallied to the support of Guido.

Fulbright Declares Bonn Shirks European Burden

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said Sunday West Germany should carry a much greater share of the U.S. military and economic burden in Europe.

"I have been very impatient with the Germans for not proceeding more rapidly to pick up more of it. I think they ought to pick up a much larger share of our expenses in NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization)," the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman said in a radio and television interview.

Turning to the domestic scene, Fulbright advised two fellow senators to stay out of Arkansas in the senatorial election campaign in which he seeks re-election.

Two Killed, Four Hurt In Train Derailment

PITTSBURGH, Ill. (UPI)—Two persons were killed and four injured Sunday when the last three cars of a 15-car Chicago and Eastern Illinois passenger train derailed at nearly 80 miles an hour near here.

Railroad employees worked throughout the day to clear the twisted wreckage from the tracks. The train, carrying between 90 and 100 persons to Evansville, Ind., from Chicago, derailed on a straight section of the track.

A CEI spokesman said the cause of the accident had not been determined.

Dead were James O'Connell, of Danville, Ill., and Mrs. Evelyn Gates, Rockford, Ill.

Kennedy Ends 'Non-Political' Tour Of West

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Kennedy spent a peaceful Sunday beside the Pacific before flying back to Washington during the night.

The Chief Executive went to church this morning in Beverly Hills, then after a brief check with his staff on official business went to the Santa Monica home of his brother-in-law, actor Peter Lawford, for a low-pressure afternoon beside the ocean.

The President was scheduled to take off from Los Angeles International Airport about midnight, arriving back in Washington at 8 a.m. EDT Monday.

Thus concluded the Chief Executive's first so-called "non-political" trip preparatory to the November congressional elections.

There will be other such trips, particularly in late September and during October, as the Chief Executive tries to increase the Democratic majority in Congress, contrary to the customary off-year election pattern in which the party in power loses congressional strength.

Because California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown is running for reelection against former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and because redistricting has given California eight new congressional seats this fall, the President planned to be out in California again once and possibly twice before the November voting.

Against the backdrop of dams, irrigation projects and even urban renewal centers and government hospitals, the Chief Executive will be able to push the basic aims of his administration and almost incidentally support local and state Democratic candidates by having them appear with him.

The President Saturday afternoon at Fresno, Calif., spoofed the attention being paid in political circles to the "non-political" label on this current trip which took him on Friday to Pierre, S.D., and Pueblo, Colo., and Saturday to the huge San Luis project in California's central valley outside Los Banos.

Standing in the company of the Democratic governor, Kennedy said jocularly:

"I want to emphasize that (this) is non-political because I have visited South Dakota, Colorado and California, not a single state that I carried in 1960."

First Since 1947 New York Alerted To Smallpox Danger

Canadian Boy Victim Of Dread Disease

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Public Health Service disclosed Sunday the first confirmed case of smallpox in the United States since 1947 and urged any persons who may have come in contact with the victim to be vaccinated immediately.

The victim, a young Canadian, spent time in New York City and Toronto, Canada.

The disease, if not checked, can be fatal, the service warned.

The New York City Health Department, although saying there was no cause for alarm, since the victim's movements in the city were limited, set up eight vaccination centers in Manhattan.

The Public Health Service in Washington said James William Orr, 14, was hospitalized Saturday in Toronto, adding that Orr entered the country at New York's Idlewild Airport from Brazil on Aug. 11 and spent much of the day in Grand Central Station before boarding a train for Toronto.

New York police issued a list of New York area passengers among the 81 or 82 persons aboard the plane who might have come in contact with the Orr family. They said an intensive door-to-door search was being made at each address given.

George James, acting city health commissioner, noted that while most persons in the United States are vaccinated against smallpox as children, the immu-

Arrival Of U2s In Britain Stirs Political Fire

Canadian Boy Victim Of Dread Disease

LONDON (AP)—Three American U2 planes, of the type made famous by Francis Gary Powers, arrived in Britain on Sunday on a mission that drew British political murmurs and growls from Moscow radio.

The aircraft touched down at Upper Heywood Airfield after a seven-hour flight from Plattsburgh, N.Y. Working for the U.S. Strategic Air Command, their mission is to carry out a "high-altitude sampling program" over the North Atlantic.

It was a U2 which Powers was flying on a photo reconnaissance mission over the Soviet Union when he was brought down in May 1960—precipitating one of the worst crises of the cold war.

The British Air Ministry emphasized that the U2 planes at Upper Heywood would be flying over international waters and would not approach within 100 miles of Soviet territory.

The very presence of the planes nevertheless aroused some political misgivings in Britain.

"The government has been wrong to agree to the U2s being based in Britain," said Fred Lee, Labor party spokesman on aviation matters. "I do not see any physical need for their presence here. What is to prevent their covering the North Atlantic from bases in America. I think the timing of it is inappropriate."

A Moscow radio commentator noted that the arrival of the U2s follows the flights of the Soviet space twins.

"It is difficult to comprehend the response of the American military, which, with the help of certain British circles, has decided on the flight from British military bases of the sinister U2 aircraft, used for purposes of espionage."

Franco Palace Target Of Bomb

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (UPI)—A plastic bomb exploded at 2:30 a.m. Sunday not far from the wall surrounding the garden of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's summer residence here, breaking windows in the palace.

Spanish army troops, which rushed to the scene, found an unexploded device in a ploughed field close by.

Franco was not at the Ayete Palace at the time. His wife, Senora Carmen Franco, was in the palace when the explosion occurred. There were no injuries.

Franco was reported to be deep sea fishing. He is expected here shortly to spend the remainder of his vacation.

Angry Crowd Again Stones Russian Bus

Mobs Demonstrate Anew Over Killing Of Young Refugee

BERLIN (AP)—Angry West Berliners Sunday stoned a Soviet army bus and booed American cars near the point on the Communist wall where a refugee lay mortally wounded for almost an hour Friday after East German guards shot him.

It was the third day of demonstrations by West Berlin crowds, outraged by the shooting and bitter at the Americans for what the Berliners considered their failure to aid the wounded 18-year-old youth as his life ebbed away.

West Berlin police reported a group of students has filed a legal complaint against the U.S. commandant in Berlin, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, on grounds of neglecting to help an injured person. A police spokesman pointed out, however, that U.S. forces in Berlin are not subject to German law.

50 Minutes Without Aid

The East German refugee, Peter Fechter, was shot as he tried to climb over the six-foot wall erected by the Communists a year ago to check the tide of escapes to the West. He fell back into East Berlin. East German guards took him away 50 minutes later, and he died in an East German hospital.

The shooting was near U.S. Checkpoint Charlie, and many Berliners apparently felt U.S. officials should have sent an ambulance to the aid of the youth.

There was no official explanation of why this was not done, but one obvious factor was anxiety lest a new incident should provoke cold war repercussions.

Demonstrators stoned the Soviet bus as it came through Checkpoint Charlie to bring soldiers to guard the War Memorial in West Berlin's British sector. A West Berlin policeman said it was pelted with beer and soft drink bottles from a distance of about 200 yards. At least one window was broken. A Soviet bus also was stoned Saturday night.

American Vehicles Jeered

There were boos, jeers and unfriendly whistles for American jeeps and military sedans going back and forth between the checkpoint and American headquarters.

There was no reaction from either American military police or civilian officials.

After stoning the Soviet bus and pelted it with bottles, some members of the crowd dragged two flaming automobile wrecks into the street. The object was apparently to halt the Soviet bus on its return from the War Memorial.

The fires were put out, and police began dragging the wrecks away.

Mayor Willy Brandt told West Berliners over the radio that he had spoken to the Western Allies in Berlin about the situation. He said he hopes in the next few days to be able to announce measures that would prevent incidents like Friday's shooting from occurring again.

But he did not say what the measures would be.

Beauty Crown Won By Miss Australia

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Australia's Tania Verstak, obviously enjoying her new role as Miss International Beauty of 1963, was still "up in the clouds" Sunday over her being picked for the title.

The 21-year-old psychology student from Sydney, Australia, was selected from a starting field of 52 girls from all over the world. She got the crown—along with $10,000 first prize money—Saturday night after the final eliminations.

First Since 1947 New York Alerted To Smallpox Danger

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Public Health Service disclosed Sunday the first confirmed case of smallpox in the United States since 1947 and urged any persons who may have come in contact with the victim to be vaccinated immediately.

The victim, a young Canadian, spent time in New York City and Toronto, Canada.

The disease, if not checked, can be fatal, the service warned.

The New York City Health Department, although saying there was no cause for alarm, since the victim's movements in the city were limited, set up eight vaccination centers in Manhattan.

The Public Health Service in Washington said James William Orr, 14, was hospitalized Saturday in Toronto, adding that Orr entered the country at New York's Idlewild Airport from Brazil on Aug. 11 and spent much of the day in Grand Central Station before boarding a train for Toronto.

New York police issued a list of New York area passengers among the 81 or 82 persons aboard the plane who might have come in contact with the Orr family. They said an intensive door-to-door search was being made at each address given.

George James, acting city health commissioner, noted that while most persons in the United States are vaccinated against smallpox as children, the immunity gained by that vaccination lasts no more than five years.

James said the health department was especially anxious to locate the cab driver who drove the boy and his family from Idlewild to the railroad terminal.

The boy's father, James Robert Orr, a missionary, recalled only that the taxi driver was a Negro and that he was operating a light-colored cab.

City police appealed to the unknown driver to notify them, the department of health, or his physician immediately.

As another precaution, the Public Health Service established a vaccination depot at Idlewild's international arrivals building.

Orr, his son, and three other members of the family entered this country at Idlewild from Sao Paulo, Brazil, and spent between noon and 8:30 p.m. in Grand Central before boarding a train for Toronto. At Idlewild, the father said, their baggage was carried by a porter to a cab which delivered them to Grand Central.

There, according to Orr, the luggage was turned over to another porter.

Orr said his son remained in Grand Central until 8:30 p.m. when the family boarded a coach car on New York Central train No. 21 to Toronto. Other designations of the train are EHD-377 and CP324.

The father recalled that the family remained in its coach, not going to the dining car. The father and James remained in Toronto, apparently with friends. Orr's wife and their other two children, Joseph, 13, and Dorothy, 9, went on to Alberta.

The boy was admitted to Riverside Communicable Disease Hospital in Toronto, Canadian authorities notified the U.S. surgeon general that the diagnosis of smallpox was made Saturday night.

In Washington, Surgeon General Luther L. Terry recommended that possible contacts who develop rash or fever within the next two weeks see their physician promptly.

"The government has been wrong to agree to the U2s being based in Britain," said Fred Lee, Labor party spokesman on aviation matters. "I do not see any physical need for their presence here. What is to prevent their covering the North Atlantic from bases in America. I think the timing of it is inappropriate."

A Moscow radio commentator noted that the arrival of the U2s follows the flights of the Soviet space twins.

"It is difficult to comprehend the response of the American military, which, with the help of certain British circles, has decided on the flight from British military bases of the sinister U2 aircraft, used for purposes of espionage."

Ohira Coming To U. S.

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's foreign minister, Masayoshi Ohira, leaves Tokyo on Sept. 15 for a three-week tour of the United States and Europe, the government announced.

Quincy, Fla. (AP)—There were no services Sunday at the Blessed Hope Missionary Baptist church near here.

A water tragedy Saturday which wiped out the Sunday school superintendent and 17 children forced suspension of classes.

And the Rev. Robert Green, pastor of the rural Negro church eight miles north of here, explained that church services normally aren't held on the third Sunday of the summer months.

The 18 drowned when the rear end of the outboard-equipped, 14-foot boat in which they had crowded for a ride plunged suddenly into the water and spilled them into the lake.

Jerome Maples, 11, a small, shy fifth-grader, was the only survivor. He said he grabbed a side of the boat as it bobbed out of the water and held on to it desperately until two white fishermen passing by rescued him.

Jerome said he was sitting next to the Sunday school superintendent, Joseph Bouie, 25, who was operating the boat, when he felt the rear end suddenly sink into the water as some of the other passengers moved suddenly toward them.

Bouie was the only occupant of the boat who could swim. But he never had a chance. Skin divers who recovered the bodies said they found one child in his arms. A small boy was on his back with his arms tightly clutched around Bouie's neck. A small girl held tightly to his waist and a boy had grabbed hold of one of his legs.

Across the street from the Maples home in a four-room frame house Ester and Mattie Mae Watson were still numbed by the tragedy in which they lost seven of their 12 children.

Angry Crowd Again Stones Russian Bus

Mobs Demonstrate Anew Over Killing Of Young Refugee

BERLIN (AP)—Angry West Berliners Sunday stoned a Soviet army bus and booed American cars near the point on the Communist wall where a refugee lay mortally wounded for almost an hour Friday after East German guards shot him.

It was the third day of demonstrations by West Berlin crowds, outraged by the shooting and bitter at the Americans for what the Berliners considered their failure to aid the wounded 18-year-old youth as his life ebbed away.

West Berlin police reported a group of students has filed a legal complaint against the U.S. commandant in Berlin, Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, on grounds of neglecting to help an injured person. A police spokesman pointed out, however, that U.S. forces in Berlin are not subject to German law.

50 Minutes Without Aid

The East German refugee, Peter Fechter, was shot as he tried to climb over the six-foot wall erected by the Communists a year ago to check the tide of escapes to the West. He fell back into East Berlin. East German guards took him away 50 minutes later, and he died in an East German hospital.

The shooting was near U.S. Checkpoint Charlie, and many Berliners apparently feel U.S. officials should have sent an ambulance to the aid of the youth. There was no official explanation of why this was not done, but one obvious factor was anxiety lest a new incident should provoke cold war repercussions.

Demonstrators stoned the Soviet bus as it came through Checkpoint Charlie to bring soldiers to guard the War Memorial in West Berlin's British sector. A West Berlin policeman said it was pelted with beer and soft drink bottles from a distance of about 200 yards. At least one window was broken. A Soviet bus also was stoned Saturday night.

American Vehicles Jeered

There were boos, jeers and unfriendly whistles for American jeeps and military sedans going back and forth between the checkpoint and American headquarters.

There was no reaction from either American military police or civilian officials.

After stoning the Soviet bus and pelted it with bottles, some members of the crowd dragged two flaming automobile wrecks into the street. The object was apparently to halt the Soviet bus on its return from the War Memorial.

The fires were put out, and police began dragging the wrecks away.

Mayor Willy Brandt told West Berliners over the radio that he had spoken to the Western Allies in Berlin about the situation. He said he hopes in the next few days to be able to announce measures that would prevent incidents like Friday's shooting from occurring again.

But he did not say what the measures would be.

Beauty Crown Won By Miss Australia

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Australia's Tania Verstak, obviously enjoying her new role as Miss International Beauty of 1963, was still "up in the clouds" Sunday over her being picked for the title.

The 21-year-old psychology student from Sydney, Australia, was selected from a starting field of 52 girls from all over the world. She got the crown—along with $10,000 first prize money—Saturday night after the final eliminations.

A Puppy Each Week...

The owner of the police puppies advertised in the recent for sale ad originally ordered it to be published for a month:

He had to cancel it in less than 2-weeks. There were three puppies in the beginning, two were sold and the third ran away (probably to find a home of his own). To get rid of Puppies, 3 or 33, always call...

PRR-NYC Merger Hearings To Open

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The or consolidation proceedings between the two railroads begins Monday in the form of hearings on the proposed merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads.

Two Interstate Commerce Commission examiners will hear officials of the roads explain why they want to form a combined system embracing 20,000 miles of track—the biggest in the east.

This is one of 14 railroad merger portation Co. through a stock exchange—1.3 shares in the new firm for each share of Central and an even swap of the new stock for each share of Pennsylvania.

Industry observers estimate the hearings before examiners Jerome K. Lyle and Henry C. Darmstadter will last three weeks or more.

Similar sessions have been held on proposals to set up two other big eastern systems by joining the Nickel Plate with the Norfolk & Western and the Baltimore & Ohio with the Chesapeake & Ohio.

Central had sought inclusion in both of these plans at various times. Rebuffed, it turned to union with Pennsylvania and said this would result in three competitively balanced major rail systems in the east.

Five Die On Md. Highways; 1962 Toll Now 341

By The Associated Press

Five persons died in traffic accidents Sunday, increasing Maryland's highway death toll for the year to 341—or 76 more than on the same date a year ago.

Archer J. Elsdorff, 64, of Lihcum Heights, Anne Arundel County, was killed in Baltimore when his car ran off a road, struck a fence and came to rest in a ditch.

Earlier, a two-car crash on Fort Smallwood Road in Anne Arundel County claimed three lives and injured two other persons.

County police identified the victims as Daniel J. Brown, 25, Brenda Davis, 14, both of Baltimore, and Ruth E. Somers, 55, Pasadena, Md.

Officers said Brown was driving southbound near the intersection of Fort Smallwood and Orchard roads when his vehicle collided with another driven by Mrs. Somers.

The impact turned Brown's car over, and it landed on top of him. The victims were pronounced dead at South Baltimore General Hospital.

In another accident Sunday morning, Mary Grace Smith, 66, of (1231 Cleveland Street) Baltimore, died after a two-car collision on U. S. 301 two miles east of Centerville, Queen Annes County.

State Police said the victim was driving on Maryland 304 when her car collided with another on 301.

Susan Strutman, 6, died and her two-year-old sister, Debra, was injured Saturday when a car driven by a hit-and-run driver struck them near their home in Ridgely.

State Police said Debra was in good condition in Memorial Hospital, Easton. They said the two youngsters had been playing in the road at the time of the accident.

Two Boys Perish In Refrigerator

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two small boys, who had been reported missing by their families a few hours earlier, were found dead Saturday night in a refrigerator in which they had become trapped.

Police identified the victims as David Jetter, 5, and Dennis King, 6. A medical examiner said the apparent cause of death was suffocation. The bodies were taken to the Baltimore City Morgue for autopsies.

Police said the refrigerator was located in a vacant apartment in nearby Dundalk. They said the victims apparently were playing in the apartment, crawled into the refrigerator and were trapped when the door closed behind them.

Vatican Attacks Legal Abortion As "Crime"

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Mrs. Sherri Finkbine was described as very tired and weak but "feeling much better now" after Saturday's successful abortion performed legally by Swedish doctors, an operation attacked by the Vatican radio today as "a crime."

Her husband, Robert Finkbine, a Phoenix, Ariz., history teacher, said he was "very happy" over the outcome, particularly since doctors told him the infant definitely would have been born deformed as a result of his wife's having taken the drug thalidomide during her early pregnancy.

Shot By Moslems

MARSEILLE, France (AP)—A group of Moslems fired into a group of Europeans on a street corner here early Sunday, wounding a 47-year-old European refugee from Algiers. Police said the shooting climaxed an argument between Moslems and Europeans who had just left Algeria. The Moslems fled after shooting Salomon Acrys, who was in serious condition with a bullet in the stomach.

Whites Picket Integrated Pool At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—A group of white youths paraded Sunday in protest to racial integration of a Baltimore swimming pool while police stood watch with K-9 dogs.

No Negroes showed up at the Riverside Park pool which had been the scene of a conflict Friday.

About 25 youths picketed the pool with signs Sunday while another 500 persons observed.

The pickets wore red, white and blue armbands with the initials "T-F-A-N." Participants said they stood for "The Fighting American Nationalists."

Similar pickets protested a demonstration by Negroes who tested segregation in restaurants in Westminster Aug. 11.

Charles J. Luthardt Sr., Glen Burnie carpenter who was an unsuccessful for the Democratic nomination for governor last May, said headquarters of the group is in Washington.

Pamphlets distributed by the pickets stated its aim was "the application of radical tactics and aggressive battling for the conservative and traditional ideals of our American constitutional republic and our white race."

Signs carried by the pickets read "Wake Up White Man," "Keep Our Pool Germ Free," and "White People Have Rights Too!"

4265 1/2 Broke Into Pen And Now He's 'Bum Rap'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Inmate No. 4265 1/2 seems to be serving his life term in the Maryland Penitentiary with unusual tranquility.

It's been 29 months since he arrived. The only sign of discontent is his frequent visits to the chaplain. But even those can be readily explained.

No. 4265 1/2 was sentenced for "breaking and entering the penitentiary." And if you think that's a bum rap, you're absolutely correct.

That's the inmate's name—Bum Rap, a collie dog befriended by the Rev. Francis M. Tobey, penitentiary chaplain.

Being innocent, at the age of one month, it wasn't easy to gain admittance to the penitentiary. Warden Vernon L. Peppersack said Bum Rap would have to display good behavior to get in—not out—of the prison.

Bum Rap finally qualified and was assigned to a cell with Robert Nicolaus, a prisoner who had taken refuge in the Brazilian Embassy in Havana to leave the country.

have their names posted on the cell door, with the dog's institution number derived from his cellmate's No. 4265.

Bum Rap even gets away with being a squealer—usually an unforgivable action in prison. He detects prisoners who break the rules by walking out of the dining hall with food in their pockets. And sometimes, he helps guards locate cells where disturbances are taking place.

"But snitcher that he is," Father Tobey said, "there isn't a man in the penitentiary who mistreats him."

"When no one else has anything to do with you," one prisoner explained, "you can always pet Bum Rap."

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter belongs to a very fine high school sorority. The girls are from 15 to 17 years of age. They plan a rush-slumber party for girls having a sorority rush-slumber about 30 girls. Our daughter of her party. It is part of wholesome, teen-age fun. Do you agree?

The girls were to meet at 11 p.m. Their dates were to leave no later than midnight. The sorority hired a six-piece band to play from 1 a. m. till 4 a. m. All the young fellows in the band are respectable. My daughter explained that they must have this band to impress the prospective pledges.

A mother of one of the best prospective pledges phoned me to say her daughter could not attend the party because boys will be present. She also mentioned some ugly rumors about boys crashing a slumber party. (Pure gossip, I'm sure.)

They plan a rush-slumber party for girls having a sorority rush-slumber about 30 girls. Our daughter of her party. It is part of wholesome, teen-age fun. Do you agree?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sorry, I don't agree with any part of it—beginning with a six-piece band to play which I abhor.

Eleven o'clock at night is no time for teenagers to be getting together. If you think you can broom out boys in one hour, you are kidding yourself. And if this is to be a slumber party, when are the girls supposed to slumber?

Finally, it's a sad commentary on our society if you must hire a six-piece band to impress 15-year-old girls. I applaud the mother who is keeping her daughter at home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is what I call a kick in the head—me asking for advice. I used to read your column for yaks, never thinking one day I'd be one of those crazy, mixed-up kids.

For the better part of a year I've been engaged (without a ring) to a lovely girl. She's very emotional and can break out in tears if I tell her /her dress is too long. I'm becoming interested in someone else and I feel rotten about it. I've got to let her know soon.

A letter would be a whole lot easier on both of us, but somehow I can't find the right words. I want her to know I appreciate all she has done for me (loaned me money and the like) but I just don't think we were meant for each other.

I know you're busy, Ann, but if you could just scratch out a paragraph or two I'd sure appreciate it.

DEAR SHIRT: Sorry but I've got all I can do scratching out answers to a few thousand letters of my own.

I don't know what "engaged without a ring" means, but if it means what I think it means, you owe this girl the courtesy of a personal visit.

DEAR ANN: My boss is an executive with this firm and I've been his secretary for seven years. Naturally, I'm completely loyal. I try hard to steer clear of his personal life, but it's not easy. His wife is a highly neurotic woman and has a suspicious nature. She's constantly checking, which, of course, puts him in a bad light.

Last week the boss was out of town. His wife came down and spent two hours going through his desk drawers.

I needed some reports which were in his office and I caught her red-handed. She was shaken, but said nothing.

I don't wish to be a bearer of tales but I despise a person who sneaks around. The question: Should I tell my boss?

—SEMPER FIDELIS

DEAR FIDELIS: No. It would open a whole new can of worms and this situation sounds plenty wormy as it is.

An executive's desk drawers should have locks. Suggest it at once.

Dig Out Of That Rut—Before You Diet!

Each human being's habits are linked together—including his eating habits. If trying to break the chain makes dieting difficult, you may find it easier to lose weight if you make an entirely new chain of habits.

To get yourself started today, take a look in advance at tomorrow and the kind of pattern you expect to follow. What are your plans for the day? What is your time schedule? Can you predict the lags, the idle moments when you're most likely to turn to food to occupy or console yourself? (If you were to experiment with a review of your usual routine over an entire week, you'd probably be able to draft a fairly accurate graph of each hour's actions and reactions. Such a chart might even clear up much of the mystery attached to the reasons that would explain both.)

When do you rise? Do you allow sufficient time to prepare for each stage of the day? What are your regular mealtime hours? When do you do your grocery shopping? When does your energy hit its lowest ebb? At what time of day are you hungriest? And just what activity—or lack of activity—provokes you into raiding the refrigerator?

See if you can't come up with some different answers—just for tomorrow. The next day, revise them a little more, so that you aren't simply trading the old rut for a new one.

Rise a bit earlier, and use the extra time to arrange a new hair-do, to enjoy a substantial high-protein, low-calorie breakfast, and then, to walk part of the way to work or school or the shopping center. (You'll discover that you can shop far more sensibly and less impulsively AFTER meals than you can when you're hungry and in a hurry to get cooking!)

Arrange to have some form of rewarding relaxation waiting to help you through that low-energy period in your day. Something like a session at a beauty salon, perhaps. If this works, set your regular appointments for this hour every week, on the days between, if you're home, you can fill in the time with a beauty nap, a luxurious bath and facial or another similar grooming "special."

The less you allow yourself to feel bored and depressed, the more your energy will begin to rally.

More flexible supper-hours will allow you to make something out of those "nothing" evenings when long, lonely hours see you gravitating between the refrigerator and the TV. Give yourself something stimulating to look forward to, something as remote from food as possible. Join a craft or hobby class, take up swimming or bowling, do a little spur-of-the-moment visiting or window-shopping, attend concerts, movies, plays.

Once you can get used to the habit of letting your days vary, of exposing yourself to new experiences to "fill in the blanks," the entire concept of your diet will take on different dimensions, too.

To prove that diet menus can be attractive and filling, send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper for a copy of "Your Beauty Diet." Delivery in two weeks.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Five clubs. Inasmuch as you are forced to proceed to game, this is the logical step. A rebid of four hearts would be dangerous in that it might persuade partner that you have a better suit. From partner's failure to bid three no trump over three hearts, you may deduce that he has a long and powerful two suiter.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

A—Four diamonds. Prospects for a slam are excellent despite the fact that your partner originally passed and, as yet, has shown no special signs of strength. If partner shows the ace of hearts now, it is a misfit, by no means an unlikely prospect, you may be able to inaugurate a doubling campaign against the opposition when the bidding gets back to you, that could spell a handsome profit for your side where no game was available.

A—Pass. You have enough high card strength to redouble but, lacking any reasonable idea of where you are headed, it is more discreet to pass temporarily and await developments. If the hand is a misfit, by no means an unlikely prospect, you may be able to inaugurate a doubling campaign against the opposition when the bidding gets back to you, that could spell a handsome profit for your side where no game was available.

What do you bid now?

A—One no trump. This hand just makes the grade. A bid in this spot should be made only with the outlook of reaching for a game. This does not appear likely since your hearts appear to be badly placed for a spade contract, but since partner may have a hand that could help produce nine tricks at no trump, one forward move by you is justified. If partner merely returns to two spades, you will, of course, pass.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠K5 ♥A8 ♦A1087632 ♣J5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	?	?

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts. There is no completely desirable call on this hand. Three hearts is somewhat of an underbid, but we dislike raising all the way to four with just two trumps. The alternative bid of four diamonds may land us in an unmakeable diamond game when four hearts could be spread. The simple heart raise leaves open the further possibility that partner may wish to try for the nine trick game at no trump.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠AJ87 ♥QS ♦K8 ♣K875

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Since partner was unable to make a better initial response than one no trump, there can be no very good play for a game. Even if he has all of his high card values in clubs and spades, which seems a likely explanation for his second round jump, it will not adequately fill the holes in your hand.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠AQ ♥K876 ♦654 ♣AK96

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 ♥	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades. This hand was microscopically short of an immediate jump shift response and, as such merits very strong treatment. On hands of this strength the proper procedure is to bid new suits twice and then raise partner. There is only a slight risk partner will take this as a legitimate suit which impression you will correct on the next round when you raise hearts.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠A6 ♥AKQJ72 ♦973 ♣K3

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	?	?	?

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. Prospects for game have not been entirely dimmed by partner's pass but, the shorter, more direct route in game looks like the best shot at this point since all partner needs are a couple of face cards strategically placed.

Rise a bit earlier, and use the extra time to arrange a new hairdo, to enjoy a substantial high-protein, low-calorie breakfast, and then, to walk part of the way to work or school or the shopping center. You'll discover that you can shop far more sensibly and less impulsively AFTER meals than you can when you're hungry and in a hurry to get cooking!

Arrange to have some form of rewarding relaxation waiting to help you through that low-energy period in your day. Something like a session at a beauty salon, perhaps. If this works, set your regular appointments for this hour every week; on the days between, if you're home, you can fill in the time with a beauty nap, a luxurious bath and facial or another similar grooming "special." The less you allow yourself to feel bored and depressed, the more your energy will begin to rally.

More flexible supper-hours will allow you to make something out of those "nothing" evenings when long, lonely hours see you gravitating between the refrigerator and the TV. Give yourself something stimulating to look forward to, something as remote from food as possible. Join a craft or hobby class, take up swimming or bowling, do a little spur-of-the-moment visiting or window-shopping, attend concerts, movies, plays.

Once you can get used to the habit of letting your days vary, of exposing yourself to new experiences to "fill in the blanks," the entire concept of your diet will take on different dimensions, too.

To prove that diet menus can be attractive and filling, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper for a copy of "Your Beauty Diet!" Delivery in two weeks.

In order to digest the food you eat your body manufactures enzymes. If your enzymatic action falls below par you often suffer gas, indigestion, heartburn and other uncomfortable forms of stomach distress. Now you can aid digestion before distress begins! A new digestant enzyme capsule, called MIAZYME, supplements the enzymes in your body, thus helping prevent distress and acid rebound. Anti-acids only relieve distress after it strikes. So why risk stomach upset when just 2 MIAZYME capsules a day may eliminate discomfort and open the door to new vistas in food enjoyment. So safe, no prescription is needed. Help break the anti-acid routine . . . ask your druggist for MIAZYME today. Satisfaction guaranteed. Only $1.50. Economy size, $3.00.

Are Russians Nine Feet Tall Again?

A familiar pattern is repeated — following Russia's latest space spectacular — in the continuing game of one-upmanship — and two-upmanship to be exact with reference to the twin orbital flights.

Typical of the expressed dejection in this country is the published remark of an unidentified official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration who says, "It probably will take a miracle for us to beat them to the moon."

But it isn't apparent that this latest exploit illustrates much more than the greater power of the Soviet booster rockets, and that's an advantage the Russians were conceded all along.

A lunar round trip will involve tremendously complicated problems above and beyond brute rocket power. The nation that first puts an astronaut on the moon will have to anticipate all conceivable hazards and make detailed preparations against them.

An example is the problem of space radiation. A lunar expedition would have to pass through the Van Allen radiation belt, a 40,000-mile-thick girdle of atomic particles encircling the earth.

Scientists now are working with computers to analyze radiation information collected by unmanned satellites. On the basis of their findings they will try to determine how much shielding will be required to protect lunar astronauts against radiation hazards.

How much experimentation have the Russians been doing in this vital aspect of space exploration? The space race isn't a ball game. Therefore it's about time to put aside these alternating moods of elation and despair at each new achievement by one side or the other.

These Days

The Incredible Democrats

The New York Democratic picture looks as though the Democrats in that state want to defeat John F. Kennedy in 1964. Obviously their task is to defeat Nelson Rockefeller in 1962, so that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency in 1964.

It is probable that either of two candidates can defeat Nelson Rockefeller. They are Robert F. Wagner, the Mayor, and James Farley, the former Postmaster-General. A brace of other candidates has been mentioned, all of them excellent men with reputations so local that it is hopeless, at this late date, to build them up to statewide eminence.

At the present time, it looks as though Nelson Rockefeller will be re-elected Governor of New York State. Conservative Republicans do not like Rockefeller but they will vote for him because there is no one else to vote for or they will stay at home as they did when Wendell Willkie ran for President. New York State is undoubtedly the center of conservative strength in this country, but the older people do not vote as often as they should and the younger conservatives have more enthusiasm than numbers.

The test of their strength will appear in the next election when Mrs. Rosemary McGrath runs for member of the Assembly in Greenwich Village. This is a lowly office but it is an excellent one for testing strength. Mrs. McGrath is an excellent woman & a wife and mother, an extrovert with a keen sense of human relations. She possesses unusual qualities of leadership in her own generation. If she can be elected in such an area as Greenwich Village, it will indicate that younger people have had their fill of the classical techniques of both parties and are seeking a change.

Governor Rockefeller has been making some advances to indicate that he is somewhat to the right of Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., and while this may bring some joy to a few conservatives, most will be very doubtful about his sincerity. He has most painstakingly built a record for himself as a Liberal of the Rooseveltian persuasion within the Republican Party. To change now seems too late, although if there is no one else around, he may turn out to be a moderate.

Meanwhile, the Democrats are sparring. They cannot compromise their prejudices and their selfishness. For instance, there can be no question but that some Democrats in New York State would like to see the De Sapo leadership back because they did well for themselves and their organizations under Carmine De Sapo who was practically driven from his party by the Kennedys, Mayor Wagner, and the American Liberal Party. Politicians do not devote their major time to the business of the "organization" unless there is something in it for them. There has been too little in it for anybody since the Reformers got De Sapo out and the Old Guard would like a Democratic Governor who would be willing to do something for "the boys."

Such a candidate, no matter how noble he may appear, would not help to carry the state for John F. Kennedy in 1964. A Presidential candidate, even one for re-election, is elected locally. Six months ago, it was certain that John F. Kennedy could carry New York in 1964. It was equally certain that the Democrats would elect a Governor. All certainties are off at this moment.

Had the income tax cut come in April 1963, it might have been helpful. It will actually come on April 15, 1964, according to the President's program and New York State is a place where the income tax is a big factor in everyone's life. The President's speech on this subject, therefore, did not help the Democrats in New York State although it undoubtedly pleased some Wall Street bankers who are scared that a tax cut now will increase the national debt and therefore imperil the U. S. bonds which they hold. If that is so now, why will it not be so in 1963 or 1964?

The Democrats need to analyze their own situation. The loss of New York State in 1962 may prove more costly than is now believed. A campaign against Rockefeller in 1964 may be much tougher than a campaign against Richard Nixon or against any other candidate. All-in-all it looks as though there is something very sour with the New York State Democrats.

Gold, The President, And The 'Cultural Lag'

By Gaston Coblentz

(Joseph Alsop is on vacation. During his absence his column will be written by reporters expert in national and international affairs.)

PARIS — Never was there a more impressively conveyed devaluation denial than President Kennedy's use of outer space to restate the inviolability of the dollar. Yet, less than a month after the President reassured Europe via Telstar, the gold market in London is simmering once more. The current fashion in Washington is to refer to this simmering — the purchase of gold in preference to dollars — as a "cultural lag" on the part of uninformed foreign capitalists and assorted miscreants. They are pictured as having dimly failed to grasp that the Administration is making seven-league strides in restoring the desirability of the dollar bill.

Yet the miscreants, even after being advised that they are victims of a cultural lag. They study intricate statistics disclosing improvements in the U.S. foreign balance of payments (earnings abroad vs. expenditures abroad) and continue to buy gold.

This has become a phenomenon of such persistence that it requires a better explanation than the favorite suggestion of Administration economists that the South African gold lobby is greedily keeping the pot boiling seen from Europe, the South African mining interests are only one of the players in this complex game. There are simply too many Europeans, ranging from erudite professors of economic theory to affluent bank executives, who either favor an increase in the price of gold in relation to the dollar and all other currencies, or who do not necessarily favor it but believe that it will occur. In one way and another, day in and day out, they are at present playing a greater role than South Africa in keeping the gold issue in the foreground.

At the moment, they are in the minority, but an articulate, influential minority whose arguments are sufficiently forceful to disquiet the majority. There is, in fact, probably no other area of international affairs in which highly technical argumentation can create as much practical turmoil as is being provoked by the abstract dispute under way all over Europe in the field of gold price theory.

What it comes down to is the contention of the gold-revaluation forces that the United States is in basic error in insisting on trying to freeze the gold price at its pre-war (since 1934) level of $35 an ounce. Since international credit is based on gold, they argue that the U.S. is in this way unnecessarily restricting its own international liquidity, that is, the amount of money it has available for transactions abroad. They contend that, in doing so, it is forcing a contraction of the United States' power to meet its responsibilities abroad, among many other world-wide consequences.

There are powerful counter-arguments. One of them is that a doubling of the gold price, by increasing the dollar value of U.S. gold reserves from $16 billion to $32 billion and by raising the currency value of other gold stocks in the same proportion, would trigger a new wave of inflation. Arguments on either side are being persuasively set forth by outstanding economists.

The point is that, Telstar notwithstanding, the existence of a bona fide conflict on the merits of the issue has recently gained much wider recognition. This strongly indicates that it will not be possible to dispose of the gold problem by blaming it on a cultural lag among the unenlightened. An increase in the price of gold may be desirable, or undesirable. However, the issue will neither be clarified nor solved by hopeful Washington declarations that the dollar's relation to gold is "immutable."

Few things in history have proved immutable, certainly not the value of the dollar, as experience has sadly shown.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

OUTDOOR MAN — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas is one of the nation's greatest lovers of the outdoors. He travels to far places at every opportunity, and during the court term, when he must stay close to Washington, he seizes every available moment to trek through the surrounding countryside.

In fact Douglas' deep devotion to outdoors recently showed in one of his official decisions.

The court upheld a lower court ruling that an insurance agent's all-expense paid trip to New York was a pleasure trip, not a business journey that could be considered deductible for tax purposes. But Douglas dissented. He contended that it was a business trip, because, as he wrote in his opinion: "I would think that some might conclude that a weekend in New York City was a chore and that those who went sacrificed valuable time that might better have been spent on the farm, in the woods, or along the seashore."

Had there been a couple more nature lovers on the high bench, that agent would have won his case in a walk — or rather in a hike through the woods.

Monkey Virus A Problem For Vaccine Makers

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most of us are so interested in our accomplishments in outer space that news about the microscopic world of germs is of secondary importance. Simian virus 40 (SV40) may not be as glamorous as the Telstar satellite but it has made a number of our top laboratory scientists prick up their ears.

SV40 has emerged as the number one criminal of the microscopic world and is being judged by cancer researchers vaccine manufacturer, and geneticists.

According to the Medical World News, this delinquent is a trouble-some contaminant of certain serums. It is difficult to eliminate because it grows in the tissues used in vaccine making.

It was found in extracts of monkey kidney tissues in which polio and certain respiratory viruses are grown. Serums prepared from these batches contained the unwanted SV40. Vaccine makers are doing an excellent job of eliminating this contaminant.

A virus similar to SV40 has been found in chicken eggs. We eat most of the eggs produced but some are used for making vaccines—another possible source of contamination.

What is wrong with SV40? One study showed it produced malignant tumors in hamsters but nothing comparable to this has been noted in other animals or in humans. Many scientists are burning the midnight oil in cancer research institutes trying to determine whether the virus is a cancer producer. All hope is not.

On the other hand, SV40 does alter the shape of cultured living human cells growing in a test tube. These cells also develop abnormal nuclei within eight to 14 weeks. In addition, the altered cells beget cells that possess the same changes.

Genetics entered the picture when it was discovered that SV40 affected the chromosomal pattern. Many of the altered cells lost one chromosome, ending up with 45 instead of 46. This explains the changed appearance of the cells but the tissues were not altered in any way. The cells were not hurt or killed nor did they become malignant.

TOMORROW: Scorpion stings.

HAMSTRING MUSCLES

A. P. writes: Is there any way an old person can strengthen his legs so he can go up and down stairs more easily?

Yes. Walk more and do exercises to strengthen the hamstring muscles that bend and lend support to the knees. Sit on the edge of a table, chair, or bed with the legs hanging down. Ask someone to hold the ankles and apply slight resistance while the knees are straightened and bent back to the starting position. Tie a weight to the ankles if no one can assist you in this type of resistance exercise.

HEPATITIS VACCINE

H. S. writes: If, as you say, no vaccine has been found for hepatitis, why do physicians give shots to persons who have been in contact with a case?

Because gamma globulin usually contains a small amount of immune bodies. It is not enough to prevent the disease in a person who is susceptible and picks up some of the viruses.

CUSSING NOT AN ILLNESS

M. O. writes: Why do some people use cuss words whenever they talk? Are they trying to make an impression or is this a sickness?

REPLY

This is not a medical question. I assume these people use such words because of habit or their limited vocabulary.

SPREAD OF BRONCHITIS

G. B. writes: Is chronic bronchitis contagious?

REPLY

Not as a rule, particularly when it is caused by smoking. An exception is chronic bronchitis caused by active tuberculosis.

TV AND EYE PAIN

T. W. N. writes: I can read continuously and my eyes don't bother me but watching TV makes them hurt instantly. The optician says my glasses don't need changing. I am 63 years old. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

Your glasses may be adequate for reading but not for television. On the other hand, there may be something else wrong with your eyes that requires the attention of an ophthalmologist. I assume your TV is tuned properly.

COOING BREATHING

E. B. writes: What would cause a young infant to make a sound like a pigeon when he breathes?

REPLY

A cooing sound can originate anywhere along the windpipe, larynx, throat, mouth, or lips. It is brought about by a narrowing of the passageway, varying from pursing the lips to partial obstruction in the throat. A physician should be consulted if this sound occurs at all times.

ADJUSTING TO ARTHRITIS

J. K. writes: What is the role of psychotherapy in the treatment of arthritis?

REPLY

None except perhaps to help the individual cooperate with the physician and adjust to the disease. Victims of arthritis are not immune to emotional and mental disorders.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

ers of water hyacinths. Debate in the Skupstina against spending national money on Southern Montenogro was so vigorous that the Tito government discreetly withdrew the highway project.

Tito's New Constitution

It is easy to see, from traveling through Yugoslavia, that there exists a strong personal democracy and spirit of freedom among its people, much more so than in any other of the satellite states I have visited. But with Dictator Franco of Spain recently stating that Western Democracy was completely outdated and with many Americans critical of the undemocratic method by which chairmen of U. S. Congressional committees have bottled up bills to prevent a vote by the entire Congress, I asked President Tito in my recent interview about the new Constitution being drafted for Yugoslavia which I had heard proposed a unique new type parliamentary system, so far unpublished.

"We have been working for a long time on the preparation of this constitution," Tito explained. "A draft has already been presented to the Federal People's Assembly and in the autumn will be submitted for general public discussion. After that, it goes to the Assembly for amendment and final adoption."

"Our Constitution will be different from conventional constitutions, and its basic principle is to keep it close to the people. It will represent the common man—the producer, whether he be a worker, a peasant, or a producer working in some institution. This Constitution does not start with a description of the state and its supreme institutions, but starts with the citizen-producer."

Tito went on to describe two other features of the new Constitution: 1. That deputies can serve for only four years, in order to get away from the encrusted prerogatives of seniority; 2.—That the new Parliament would consist of separate houses of experts.

Experts Vs. Seniority

I did not tell Tito this, but it occurred to me that the American Congress, which recently came within a few votes of abolishing U. S. aid to Yugoslavia, wouldn't like either of these at all. Imagine Rep. Clarence Cannon of Missouri, now 83, who has bossed the House Appropriations Committee for years, rotating his job with anyone else! Clarence would start a revolution first!

Or imagine Rep. Howard Smith, the Virginia Dixiecrat, who is an expert dairy farmer, admitting that he is not also an expert on education. Howard has blocked the aid to education bill for six years, sometimes on the excuse that he had to tend his cows in Virginia. He would never go for a system of committees of experts.

President Tito, however, has different ideas for Yugoslavia.

"The Federal People's Assembly," he said, "will have several houses that will be able to devote themselves expertly and concretely to particular fields of social life. For example, there will be separate Houses for producers, for education, for health, and for culture."

"Thus, it will not be necessary for the entire Assembly to meet to consider these individual problems—unless some major problem arises. Then it will come before the respective house concerned and the Federal Assembly jointly."

Tito also went into the question of elections, a sore point in most Communist states.

"Deputies for the Federal Assembly, some 150 of them," he said, "will be elected by direct vote. On the other hand, deputies to the lower houses which deal with expert problems will be selected by municipal councils, communes, and lower assemblies, and they will serve for only two years. Members of the Federal Assembly will serve four years."

Tito also described a provision in the new Constitution which is similar to the American Constitution, namely, the separation of the executive and the legislative branches of government.

This may get him into more trouble than he realizes, and if he has any doubts, he might ask John F. Kennedy.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The twins are four. They are plump little blondes, with tan faces and large blue eyes. There is something especially sweet about little girls. Sweet and nibbly. These are my grandchildren—Pamela and Robin Frechette—and they are identical. Nothing hurts more than for me to say "Hello, Pam" and have the kid point to her little chest and say: "Me Wobbin."

The diction is lousy. Robin is a dreamer. Pamela is the old lady of the family. Robby lives for fun; Pam is a worrier with a big conscience. They have a younger brother, Jim, who is now three, and he is a soft sentimentalist with a butch haircut who is easily pushed around. There is an even younger one, Kevin—he of the moon-faced smile with the nose wrinkled and the eyes squinted shut. And, in two weeks, there will be a new one.

Any questions?

Their mother, Ginny, has always loved babies but she is one of the few I know who can romp on the floor with the youngsters without appearing to be condescending. When she reads Winnie The Pooh to them, or the Ugly Duckling and Hansel and Gretel, you can bet that she is as interested in the story as the children.

It was Robin. She had to go to the bathroom. I put trousers on. Then I bowed her in. She asked if I would help her unbutton her shoulder straps. I did. The whole play suit fell to her ankles. She went to the bathroom and came out with a new roll of toilet tissue. "This," she said, "is soggy."

"It's what?" I said. She repeated the words. I don't know where she learned "soggy," but she was right. The roll was good and soggy. "Did you drop it in the bowl?" I said. She nodded gravely. "It slipped," she said.

A little later their daddy came in from work and they greeted him with big kisses and identical speeches. "We been berry good all day what did you bring us? I told them a story about their cousin Stephen Angerami, who had been told to ask God for anything reasonable."

The next morning, at breakfast, he said he would never ask God for anything again. His mother asked why. "Last night," he said solemnly, "I went into the bathroom and I sat down and I said 'Hey God, shut the door' and he didn't."

The twins didn't think it was funny. They stared at me, and Pam said: "Why didn't he? Just give me time. There must be an answer to that one..."

Mayor Chaney Set To Open Fair Tonight

Free Show Planned In Grandstand

The 45th annual Cumberland Fair will be opened officially at 8 o'clock tonight when Mayor Earl D. Chaney briefly addresses the crowd assembled at Fairgo.

Charles I. Sager, a member of the faculty of Frostburg State Teachers College, will sing the National Anthem. A Navy color guard will be present for the opening ceremonies.

These opening events will be followed by the first performance of the free grandstand show.

The Stars of Tomorrow revue, directed by Roy Knotts, will feature the Gentlemen of Note, 14-piece dance band; Joy Holler, Billy Boggs, Kathy and Diane Ritchie, Carolyn Sue Luman, the Sophisticates, the Seven Taps and the Dixettes, an 18-girl dance chorus.

Joseph F. Stakem will serve as master of ceremonies for the show.

Tuesday through Saturday nights there will be a fireworks display.

Patrons at this grandstand show will be furnished ballots each night to vote for "Miss Fairgo." Each of the five girls vying in this competition will be honored on a different night this week.

Carolyn Erickson, the Allegany County Farm Queen, will be presented tonight. Brenda Lee Pugh, the Mineral County (W.Va.) Fair Queen, will be honored tomorrow night. Miss Maria Gurzenda, the Pennsylvania Maple Queen from Somerset County, will be the guest of honor Wednesday night. Deborah Sindy, the West Virginia Poultry Queen, will be honored on Thursday night. Then on Friday night attention will be focused upon Miss Kathleen Haefling, the Garrett County Fair Queen.

One of the five will be crowned as "Miss Fairgo" Saturday night by Miss Sally Ott Miller of Midland, the "Miss Fairgo" of 1961. Miss Beverly Ann Smith of Baltimore, who won honors as "Miss Maryland" in Salisbury last month, will visit the Fair here on Friday afternoon and evening.

Recipients from commercial exhibits at Fairgo are 22 per cent higher than last year's record figure, according to Harry J. Barton, superintendent of the Fair.

Tuesday and Thursday will be "children's days" at the Fair when the prices for the midway attractions will be reduced.

Ali Ghan Units Will Parade In Salisbury

All of the colorful uniformed units of Ali Ghan Temple, A.A.O.N.M.S., have accepted an invitation to appear in a parade marking the Salisbury, Pa., Centennial on Wednesday, August 29, according to J. Wallace Close, illustrious potentate.

The Salisbury parade is scheduled to start at 7:15 p. m.

This will mark the final parade appearance of the Ali Ghan Shrine units until the Mid-Atlantic Shrine Association meeting to be held September 14 and 15 in Atlantic City, N. J.

Shrine units have appeared in three parades this summer. They marched on June 9 in a parade emphasizing the Miss Ali Ghan competition that weekend. Two weeks later, on June 23, they paraded on Baltimore Street as part of the temple's summer ceremonial when more than 66 new nobles were invited. Then on June 30, the Shrine units appeared once again during the parade marking the Frostburg Sesquicentennial.

The Salisbury parade will mark the first time the 15 new motor scooters have appeared in the line of march. They have been accepted as part of the Shrine's provost guard of which Paul C. Haberlein is captain.

Other Ali Ghan Shrine units include the band, Russell H. Shaffer, director; the director's staff, Charles F. Dicks, president; Motor patrol, Jimmie D. Flanagan, president; ritual team, Walter Brock, president; the patrol, Philip W. Ward, captain; drum corps, Hugh Bartik, president; flag unit, Edward T. GOP Campaigns In Frederick; Pollack Target

Steers, Small, Miller Speak

By The Associated Press

Maryland Republicans swung in to the general election campaign this weekend with a vote-seeking motor tour from one end of Frederick County to the other.

The caravan of statewide candidates in four cars and a sound truck got under way at the Montgomery - Frederick line Saturday morning and came to rest at the Frederick - Washington line 13 hours later.

Newton I. Steers Jr., candidate for congressman-at-large, held forth at a Frederick shopping center and took aim at Jack Pollack, Democratic boss in north-west Baltimore.

"We have to stand up against black Jack Pollack, the man who tried to bribe the governor of Maryland," said Steers.

Pollack claimed Tawes accepted $5,000 from him in return for political patronage. A Baltimore grand jury threw out of its primary-election probe a tape which purported to record the negotiation.

"I am the only anti-Pollack candidate for congressman-at-large," Steers proclaimed. His Democratic opponent, Carlton R. Sickles, was the only successful member of the losing primary ticket headed by George Mahoney. Pollack endorsed the Mahoney slate.

In Boonsboro, GOP gubernatorial candidate Frank Small Jr. called for greater efforts to lure new industry to Maryland.

He advocated providing quick tax write-offs for manufacturing equipment lost in the move to Maryland.

Later, Small charged that the Tawes administration had paid $750,000 for land which had been assessed at $750.

The Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, Edward T. Miller, later accused his Democratic opponent, Rep. Daniel B. Brewster, of inconsistency.

Miller claimed Brewster "has a record of agreeing with everyone, and then voting in Congress exactly opposite to his publicly stated and printed views." Miller, an Eastern Shoreman, addressed a picnic crowd in Wolfsville, near the western end of Frederick County.

At another picnic, in Utica, Miller came out against the construction of large dams except when they're absolutely necessary. He said they rarely are.

Fire Damages Garage Roof At Warehouse

Two local fire companies went to the city warehouse last night where they extinguished a fire on a garage roof which was believed to have been set by a couple of youngsters.

When Box 12 was pulled at the intersection of Valley and Lee streets at 7 p. m. firemen from Central and West Side stations responded.

They said a hole was burned in the roof of the one-story frame garage and it appeared the fire originated on the outside of the building.

City Police Detective Royce Clayton said the watchman reported seeing two youngsters between the age of eight and 10 at the scene about the time the fire broke out.

Sun Porch, Couch Damaged By Fire

A couch and walls of a sun porch at 850 Sperry Terrace were damaged by fire yesterday morning.

Firemen from West Side station were called at 10:52 a. m. and extinguished the blaze which was blamed on defective wiring. The firemen were out for 38 minutes.

Frostburg Boy Heads Md. Squires

James Kenney Jr. Wins Election

James P. Kenney Jr., 96 West Main Street, Frostburg, this weekend was elected chief squire of the Maryland State Circle, Columbian Squires, during the third annual convention held at the home of Cumberland Council 586, Knights of Columbus.

Young Kenney, who will be a senior this year at LaSalle High School, is also chief squire of Father Bradley Circle 1218, Frostburg.

He has been a member of the circle 18 months, and held the office of sentry prior to being elected chief squire. He is active in ministrals held at the local high school.

Other officers for the coming year include Terry Powell of Patapsco Circle 404, Baltimore, deputy chief squire; Michael Hilditch, Father Flanagan Circle 1422, Baltimore, notary; and John Strott, Notre Dame Circle 618, Baltimore, bursar.

The two-day convention closed with the formal installation of the state circle officers by John W. Kreidler, district three deputy, Knights of Columbus.

The 1963 convention will be held in Baltimore with Patapsco Circle as host.

Delegates to the convention from Western Maryland were James and Richard Kenney, John Roland and Adrian Villa, of the Frostburg Circle; Patrick and Dennis Mulligan, James Williams and William Witt, Cardinal Mooney Circle, Mt. Savage; Philip Carolan, John Kreidler Jr., Michael Madden and Robert Twigg of the local circle.

Girl Scouts Set Demonstrations At Local Fair

Senior Girl Scouts from nine troops in Shawnee Council will demonstrate several types of outdoor cooking and camping skills at the Cumberland Fair this week. Eight scouts will participate each day from 4 until 8 p. m. at the camping exhibit set up in the paddock area across from the flower exhibits on the Fair grounds.

Cooking will be done over charcoal, on tin can stoves and by reflector oven. Samples of food cooked each day will be given to the public. Included will be main dishes, dessert or sweets such as peanut brittle.

The scouts will demonstrate camping skills such as preparing a bed roll for outdoor sleeping and they also will give outdoor cooking tips.

Outdoor activities play a big part in Girl Scout emergency preparations, and in preparing the scouts to be of service in the community. Shawnee Girl Scout Council is an agency of the County United Fund.

Troops participating and their leaders are Monday, Frostburg troops 52 and 54, Mrs. Gurney Beeman and Mrs. William McCullough; Troop 8, Mrs. Guy Smith and Mrs. Gerald Brighner, Tuesday; LaVale troop 18, Mrs. Elmer Beachley, Wednesday; Frostburg troop 73, Mrs. Alvin Kreiling, Thursday; members of Round-up patrol and alternates, Mrs. Edward Milbrada and Mrs. Guy Smith, Friday, and Tri-Towns troops 70 and 107, Mrs. Gertrude Groves and Mrs. Deslie Bothwell, on Saturday.

City Police Detective Royce Clayton said the watchman reported seeing two youngsters between the age of eight and 10 at the scene about the time the fire broke out.

Sun Porch, Couch Damaged By Fire

A couch and walls of a sun porch at 850 Sperry Terrace were damaged by fire yesterday morning.

Veterans Plan Hospital Visit

Member units of the Area Service Veterans Organization plan to go to the Newton D. Baker VA Center in Martinsburg, W. Va., on Sunday to visit patients in the tuberculosis ward.

They will take cigarettes and books to the patients, who will be entertained by Two Hits And A Miss, a local musical group.

Participating units of the area which will meet at the VA Center at 2 p. m. include the American Legion and its auxiliary unit at Ridgeley; Veterans of Foreign Wars and Cooties of McCoole; 40-8 and American Legion of Keyser; and the VFW and American Legion of Lonaconing.

Anyone who might have pocket-books or magazines to send to the patients is asked to contact any of the veterans organizations planning to make the trip.

Brotherhood Will Meet Tonight

Mountain Division Lodge No. 267, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, will meet at 7:30 p. m. today at the Chapel Hill House, 120 Arch Street, according to Harold K. Ritter, treasurer.

This is considered an important meeting for all members because it involves a report on the national negotiations now in progress, according to Mr. Ritter.

Md. Democrat Leaders Stress Need For Unity

Candidates Show No Complacency

BALTIMORE (AP) — Signs of complacency were lacking Saturday at a workshop whose purpose was to brace statewide and local Democratic candidates for the general election campaign against the Republicans.

Rep. Daniel B. Brewster, the party's nominee for the U. S. Senate, summed up generally the feelings of most of those present.

"We'd be less than candid not to admit we still have wounds in some areas," Brewster said. "Let's forgive and forget. The only way we can lose is not to work together. . . ."

The wounds he cited were those created during one of the roughest Democratic primary campaigns in years.

"Let's all pull together, boys" was the general theme of the workshop.

"No one individual can possibly carry this political campaign to a successful conclusion for the Democratic Party," said incumbent Gov. Tawes.

Finan Points With Pride

Other speakers included Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan; Herbert R. O'Connor Jr., chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee; Richard Donahue, a special assistant to President Kennedy, and Richard W. Case, an attorney and close associate of Tawes.

Finan pointed out the achievements of the Tawes administration. "We haven't walked out on any problem," he declared. "There isn't one field in the social or economic advancement of the people that the administration of Gov. Tawes hasn't touched upon."

Both Tawes and O'Connor emphasized to the candidates that the literature passed out to them was no substitute for "elbow grease and hard shoe-leather campaigning."

JFK Is Watching

Donahue told the candidates that the President is concerned with the results of the off-year election. The administration's working majority in the House of Representatives, he said, is only five votes on liberal legislation.

Case outlined for the candidates possible Republican charges involving savings and loans and the answers for them.

The Republicans will charge, Case said, that Tawes is responsible for the loss of savings by many persons because he vetoed an interim savings and loan bill in 1960.

They also will charge, he added, that certain Democrats profited from the operations of the now defunct Security Financial Insurance Corp., insurer of savings and loan accounts.

Case said the governor vetoed the 1960 savings and loan measure because it had been watered down by 30 amendments and acceptance might have increased the difficulty of obtaining a strong bill.

Charge Is Answered

After the veto, Tawes appointed a commission, headed by Case, which drafted the savings and loan regulatory act under which the state now is operating.

The establishment of a state administered organization to insure savings and loan accounts by the Tawes Administration answers the second charge, Case said.

A move to condemn the role of Jack Pollack, northwest Baltimore Democratic boss, in the naming of Francis J. Valle for the state's attorney's opening on the general election ballot did not get off the ground.

Ten of the Baltimore Democratic State Central Committee members voted for Valle last Monday at a meeting called to choose the successor to the late Saul A. Harris, Harris, who won nomination in the primary, died last Saturday.

After Valle was named, Tawes accused Pollack of engineering what the governor called the worst travesty of justice in Maryland political history.

Mayor Chaney Set To Open Fair Tonight

Free Show Planned In Grandstand

The 45th annual Cumberland Fair will be opened officially at 8 o'clock tonight when Mayor Earl D. Chaney briefly addresses the crowd assembled at Fairgo.

Charles I. Sager, a member of the faculty of Frostburg State Teachers College, will sing the National Anthem. A Navy color guard will be present for the opening ceremonies.

These opening events will be followed by the first performance of the free grandstand show.

The Stars of Tomorrow revue, directed by Roy Knotts, will feature the Gentlemen of Note, 14-piece dance band; Joy Holler, Billy Boggs, Kathy and Diane Ritchie, Carolyn Sue Luman, the Sophisticates, the Seven Taps and the Dixiettes, an 18-girl dance chorus.

Joseph F. Stakem will serve as master of ceremonies for the show.

Tuesday through Saturday nights there will be a fireworks display.

Patrons at this grandstand show will be furnished ballots each night to vote for "Miss Fairgo." Each of the five girls vying in this competition will be honored on a different night this week.

Carolyn Erickson, the Allegany County Farm Queen, will be presented tonight. Brenda Lee Pugh, the Mineral County (W.Va.) Fair Queen, will be honored tomorrow night. Miss Maria Gutzend, the Pennsylvania Maple Queen from Somerset County, will be the guest of honor Wednesday night. Deborah Sindy, the West Virginia Poultry Queen, will be honored on Thursday night. Then on Friday night attention will be focused upon Miss Kathleen Haentling, the Garrett County Fair Queen.

One of the five will be crowned as "Miss Fairgo" Saturday night by Miss Sally Ort Miller of Midland, the "Miss Fairgo" of 1961. Miss Beverly Ann Smith of Baltimore, who won honors as "Miss Maryland" in Salisbury last month, will visit the Fair here on Friday afternoon and evening.

Recipients from commercial exhibits at Fairgo are 22 per cent higher than last year's record figure, according to Harry J. Barton, superintendent of the Fair.

Tuesday and Thursday will be "children's days" at the Fair when the prices for the midway attractions will be reduced.

Ali Ghan Units Will Parade In Salisbury

All of the colorful uniformed units of Ali Ghan Temple, A.A.O.N.M.S., have accepted an invitation to appear in the parade marking the Salisbury, Pa., Centennial on Wednesday, August 29, according to J. Wallace Close, illustrious potentate.

The Salisbury parade is scheduled to start at 7:15 p. m.

This will mark the final parade appearance of the Ali Ghan Shrine units until the Mid-Atlantic Shrine Association meeting to be held September 14 and 15 in Atlantic City, N. J.

Shrine units have appeared in three parades this summer. They marched on June 9 in a parade emphasizing the Miss Ali Ghan competition that weekend. Two weeks later, on June 23, they paraded on Baltimore Street as part of the temple's summer ceremonial when more than 66 new nobles were inducted. Then on June 30, the Shrine units appeared once again during the parade marking the Frostburg Sesquicentennial.

The Salisbury parade will mark the first time the 15 new motor scooters have appeared in the line of march. They have been accepted as part of the Shrine's provost guard of which Paul C. Haberlein is captain.

Other Ali Ghan Shrine units include the band, Russell H. Shaffer president; the director's staff, Charles F. Dicks president; Motor patrol, Jimmie D. Flanagan president; ritual team, Walter Brock president; the patrol, Philip W. Ward captain; drum corps, Hugh Bartik president; flag unit, Edward T. Evans Jr. president; and mounted patrol, Carl V. Wiseman president.

GOP Campaigns In Frederick; Pollack Target

Steers, Small, Miller Speak

By The Associated Press
Maryland Republicans swung in to the general election campaign this weekend with a vote-seeking motor tour from one end of Frederick County to the other.

The caravan of statewide candidates in four cars and a sound truck got under way at the Montgomery - Frederick line Saturday morning and came to rest at the Frederick - Washington line 13 hours later.

Newton I. Steers Jr., candidate for congressman-at-large, held forth at a Frederick shopping center and took aim at Jack Pollack, Democratic boss in north-west Baltimore.

"We have to stand up against black Jack Pollack, the man who tried to bribe the governor of Maryland," said Steers.

Pollack claimed Tawes accepted $5,000 from him in return for political patronage. A Baltimore grand jury threw out of its primary-election probe a tape which purported to record the negotiation.

"I am the only anti-Pollack candidate for congressman-at-large," Steers proclaimed. His Democratic opponent, Carlton R. Sickles, was the only successful member of the losing primary ticket headed by George Mahoney. Pollack endorsed the Mahoney slate.

In Boonsboro, GOP gubernatorial candidate Frank Small Jr. called for greater efforts to lure new industry to Maryland. He advocated providing quick tax write-offs for manufacturing equipment lost in the move to Maryland.

Later, Small charged that the Tawes administration had paid $750,000 for land which had been assessed at $750.

The Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, Edward T. Miller, later accused his Democratic opponent, Rep. Daniel B. Brewster, of inconsistency.

Miller claimed Brewster "has a record of agreeing with everyone, and then voting in Congress exactly opposite to his publicly stated and printed views." Miller, an Eastern Shoreman, addressed a picnic crowd in Wolfsville, near the western end of Frederick County.

At another picnic, in Utica, Miller came out against the construction of large dams except when they're absolutely necessary. He said they rarely are.

Fire Damages Garage Roof At Warehouse

Two local fire companies went to the city warehouse last night where they extinguished a fire on a garage roof which was believed to have been set by a couple of youngsters.

When Box 12 was pulled at the intersection of Valley and Lee streets at 7 p. m. firemen from Central and West Side stations responded.

They said a hole was burned in the roof of the one-story frame garage and it appeared the fire originated on the outside of the building.

City Police Detective Royce Clayton said the watchman reported seeing two youngsters between the age of eight and 10 at the scene about the time the fire broke out.

Sun Porch, Couch Damaged By Fire

A couch and walls of a sun porch at 850 Sperry Terrace were damaged by fire yesterday morning.

Firemen from West Side station were called at 10:52 a. m. and extinguished the blaze which was blamed on defective wiring. The firemen were out for 38 minutes.

Frostburg Boy Heads Md. Squires

James Kenney Jr. Wins Election

James P. Kenney Jr., 96 West Main Street, Frostburg, this weekend was elected chief squire of the Maryland State Circle, Columbian Squires, during the third annual convention held at the home of Cumberland Council 586, Knights of Columbus.

Young Kenney, who will be a senior this year at LaSalle High School, is also chief squire of Father Bradley Circle 1218, Frostburg.

He has been a member of the circle 18 months, and held the office of sentry prior to being elected chief squire. He is active in minstrels held at the local high school.

Bert Mason, of Bishop James E. Walsh Circle 1222, Cumberland, host circle for the convention, was elected marshal of the state organization.

Other officers for the coming year include Terry Powell of Patapsco Circle 404, Baltimore, deputy chief squire; Michael Hilditch, Father Flanagan Circle 1422, Baltimore, notary; and John Strott, Notre Dame Circle 618, Baltimore, bursar.

The two-day convention closed with the formal installation of the state circle officers by John W. Kreidler, district three deputy, Knights of Columbus.

The 1963 convention will be held in Baltimore with Patapsco Circle as host.

Delegates to the convention from Western Maryland were James and Richard Kenney, John Roland and Adrian Villa, of the Frostburg Circle; Patrick and Dennis Mulligan, James Williams and William Witt, Cardinal Mount Circle, Mt. Savage; Philip Carolan, John Kreidler Jr., Michael Madden and Robert Twigg of the local circle.

Girl Scouts Set Demonstrations At Local Fair

Senior Girl Scouts from nine troops in Shawnee Council will demonstrate several types of outdoor cooking and camping skills at the Cumberland Fair this week. Eight scouts will participate each day from 4 until 8 p. m. at the camping exhibit set up in the paddock area across from the flower exhibits on the Fair grounds.

Cooking will be done over charcoal, on tin can stoves and by reflector oven. Samples of food cooked each day will be given to the public. Included will be main dishes, dessert or sweets such as peanut brittle.

The scouts will demonstrate camping skills such as preparing a bed roll for outdoor sleeping and they also will give outdoor cooking tips.

Outdoor activities play a big part in Girl Scout emergency preparations, and in preparing the scouts to be of service in the community. Shawnee Girl Scout Council is an agency of the County United Fund.

Troops participating and their leaders are Monday, Frostburg troops 52 and 54, Mrs. Gurney Beeman and Mrs. William McCullough; Troop 8, Mrs. Guy Smith and Mrs. Gerald Breighner, Tuesday; LaVale troop 18, Mrs. Elmer Beachley, Wednesday; Frostburg troop 73, Mrs. Alvin Kreiling, Thursday; members of Round-up patrol and alternates, Mrs. Edward Milbrada and Mrs. Guy Smith, Friday, and Tri-Towns troops 70 and 107, Mrs. Gertrude Groves and Mrs. Dessie Bothwell, on Saturday.

Participating units of the area which will meet at the VA Center at 2 p. m. include the American Legion and its auxiliary unit at Ridgeley; Veterans of Foreign Wars and Cooties of McCoole; 40-8 and American Legion of Keyser; and the VFW and American Legion of Lonaconing.

Anyone who might have pocket-books or magazines to send to the patients is asked to contact any of the veterans organizations planning to make the trip.

Md. Democrat Leaders Stress Need For Unity

Candidates Show No Complacency

BALTIMORE (AP) — Signs of complacency were lacking Saturday at a workshop whose purpose was to brace statewide and local Democratic candidates for the general election campaign against the Republicans.

Rep. Daniel B. Brewster, the party's nominee for the U. S. Senate, summed up generally the feelings of most of those present.

"We'd be less than candid not to admit we still have wounds in some areas," Brewster said. "Let's forgive and forget. The only way we can lose is not to work together."

The wounds he cited were those created during one of the roughest Democratic primary campaigns in years.

"Let's all pull together, boys," was the general theme of the workshop.

"No one individual can possibly carry this political campaign to a successful conclusion for the Democratic Party," said incumbent Gov. Tawes.

Finan Points With Pride

Other speakers included Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan; Herbert R. O'Connor Jr., chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee; Richard Donahue, a special assistant to President Kennedy; and Richard W. Case, an attorney and close associate of Tawes.

Finan pointed out the achievements of the Tawes administration. "We haven't walked out on any problem," he declared. "There isn't one field in the social or economic advancement of the people that the administration of Gov. Tawes hasn't touched upon."

Both Tawes and O'Connor emphasized to the candidates that the literature passed out to them was no substitute for "elbow grease and hard shoe-leather campaigning."

JFK Is Watching

Donahue told the candidates that the President is concerned with the results of the off-year election. The administration's working majority in the House of Representatives, he said, is only five votes on liberal legislation.

Case outlined for the candidates possible Republican charges involving savings and loans and the answers for them.

The Republicans will charge, Case said, that Tawes is responsible for the loss of savings by many persons because he vetoed an interim savings and loan bill in 1960.

They also will charge, he added that certain Democrats profited from the operations of the now defunct Security Financial Insurance Corp., insurer of savings and loan accounts.

Case said the governor vetoed the 1960 savings and loan measure because it had been watered down by 30 amendments and acceptance might have increased the difficulty of obtaining a strong bill.

Charge Is Answered

After the veto, Tawes appointed a commission, headed by Case, which drafted the savings and loan regulatory act under which the state now is operating.

The establishment of a state administered organization to insure savings and loan accounts by the Tawes Administration answers the second charge, Case said.

A move to condemn the role of Jack Pollack, northwest Baltimore Democratic boss, in the naming of Francis J. Valle for the state's attorney's opening on the general election ballot did not get off the ground.

Ten of the Baltimore Democratic State Central Committee members voted for Valle last Monday at a meeting called to choose the successor to the late Saul A. Harris. Harris, who won nomination in the primary, died last Saturday.

After Valle was named, Tawes accused Pollack of engineering what the governor called the worst travesty of justice in Maryland political history.
